

WELNA

At WELNA, we want to share the heritage of Polish wool and the craftsmanship of hand knitting, passed down through generations. Harnessing the material's raw durability and timeless quality, WELNA is an ethical and sustainable brand.

We offer simple, stylish, functional jumpers, for all bodies and sizes, available in our signature melange or in four natural colour ways: off-white, light grey, dark grey or black.

Our focus is on individual pieces rather than collections, therefore all our jumpers are made-to-order to generate zero waste. We decided on sheep's wool because it was the most carbon neutral option, as they grow a new fleece every year, making the material naturally regenerative and recyclable.

All our wool is ethically sourced from the Podhale region at the foot of the Tatra Mountains – the “Polish Highlands” – in the south of Poland. Each lot of raw fibre can be traced to the farm of origin.

Every piece is hand knitted in Poland, employing high-quality craftsmanship and an eco-friendly production process under fair working conditions.

The idea of WELNA was born when Natalia, the brand founder, started to seek a more simple and sustainable life, having worked for many years in luxury fashion.
